AUSTIN — Members of the Texas Colorado River Floodplain Coalition (TCRFC) have elected the group's officers for 2005-2007.

The new officers are as follows:

- James Oakley, Burnet County Commissioner, Chair
- Robert Lindsey, Mills County Judge, Vice Chair
- Renee Blaschke, Mayor of Smithville, Secretary
- Blair Neill, Marble Falls Council Member, Treasurer

Oakley moves up from serving as vice chair of the coalition. Blaschke and Neill have been serving as secretary and treasurer respectively and will continue for another term.

The coalition, a partnership of 38 cities and 15 counties in the Colorado River basin, coordinates efforts to reduce and mitigate flood damage. The coalition provides a forum for leaders of communities in the lower Colorado River basin to network on flood issues and to coordinate and improve the effectiveness of their floodplain management programs. LCRA provides administrative and technical support to the coalition.
